∴ The brothers served together in the 31st Regiment in the flank battalions formed by the Grenadier and Light Companies of the Army in Holland in 1799.

*In the "History of the East Surrey Regiment" there is a very good account of the battle of Albuhera in which Col. Hawkshaw took a prominent part. It reads as follows—
" . . . and on the left, a Battalion of the Loyal Lusitanian Regiment commanded by Major Hawkshaw of the 31st Foot who had served in Holland with the Regiment. The French Cavalry charged again but were stopped by the steady fire of the Portuguese Brigade. The final and victorious charge of the brigade was led by Major Hawkshaw who at the last moment received a wound at close quarters from which he suffered to the end of his life. The Brigadier and all the other commanding officers in the brigade had been killed or wounded previously. Drenching rain came on, and so ended the terrible day's fighting, the most bloody in all the long Peninsular War.*
